Max Webber Library study rooms

Study rooms are available at Max Webber Library, Blacktown and may be booked by library members for study purposes. There are no charges for booking these rooms. Please see Library staff to make your booking.

Conditions of use

In order to ensure fair use of study spaces, each individual or group may book study rooms for no more than 2 hours per day.

For the safety and comfort of all, please:

- ensure noise is kept to a minimum as this is a quiet study room
- keep personal belongings secure at all times
- dispose of rubbish in the bins provided
- keep mobile phone use to a minimum
- ensure furniture remains in original formation
- food is not permitted, only bottled water and lidded drinks.

Individual study rooms

A maximum of 3 people may be accommodated in individual study rooms, that is one person per desk. A valid library card is required to book a study desk.

Group study rooms

The group study room may be booked for study purposes for (non-commercial) group use as approved by library staff.

- At least one member of the group must hold a current library membership.
- A minimum of 5 and maximum of 10 people may be accommodated in the group study room.
- While some regular bookings may be accommodated, these are subject to library approval and are also time-limited.
